Why Legislate?

Fundamental ethical principle – all human behaviour has to be regulated

COMPONENTS OF ACTS OF PARLIAMENT

Primary legislation consists of Acts of Parliament (Revised Edition of the Laws of Malta).

The structure of each Act of Parliament follows a common pattern:

- 1) Long title
- 2) The enacting formula (which lists inter alia the legislative history of the Act)
- 3) Short title (which is usually the first article in the Act)
- 4) Commencement date, if any
- 5) The 'interpretation' clause, defining key terms which appear throughout the Act
- 6) Main provisions
- 7) Administrative provisions
- 8) Transitional provisions - cover certain issues from the old legal regime to the new one
- 9) Repealing provisions
- 10) Schedule/s

SUBSIDIARY / DELEGATED LEGISLATION

- The legislative supremacy of Parliament allows it to grant to some other person or body the authority to make subsidiary legislation such as regulations or orders
- Subsidiary to the 'primary' or 'parent' Act under which this authority is created.
- The need to enact many laws - difficulty of limited parliamentary broad issues of principle and policy in the sense of providing a framework law.
- Laws contain provisions empowering regulations under the authority of the parent Act.
- Parliament not always in session. Legislative procedures necessarily slow. Delegated legislation more flexible, speedily created and may be easily revoked.
- Some legislation is better handled by a specialised minister with experts.
- Useful for further regulation which might not be foreseen by Parliament.

Criticism of delegated legislation:

- Even though power is delegated / authorised, it amounts to legislating by the executive which goes against the strict interpretation of the doctrine of separation of powers.
- Laws are in skeleton form, details through delegated legislation. The devil is in detail.
- Not always satisfactory drafting.
- Limited parliamentary time does not allow full control of what its delegates.

BUT precautions are taken against abuse of power in the form of judicial review.

The very first article of Civil Code

1A. (1) Persons may either be natural persons or legal persons.

(2) When used in any law the term "person" shall include both natural persons as well as legal persons, unless the context otherwise requires.

(3) Natural persons are regulated by Title I to Title VIII of Book First of this Code.

(4) Legal persons are regulated by the Second Schedule to this Code.

(5) Legal persons enjoy all rights and powers pertaining to natural persons except those excluded by their very nature, by their constitutive act or by an express provision of law.

V. IMP CASES : Dr Jose Herrera noe et vs Tancred Tabone et noe [1989]
 Supermarkets Ltd. vs Le Cram Dev. Co. ltd [2002] – good faith
 Dr. Borg Cardona v. Victor Zammit et. – Lifting of Corporate Veil.
